Kerby Anderson

Sue Bohlin
- John Kerby Anderson (1947–) is a leading Christian philosopher, author, and speaker. He is the founder and president of Probe Ministries, an organization dedicated to promoting a Christian worldview in the public square. Anderson is well-known for his work in the fields of bioethics, philosophy, and Christianity. He has written numerous books and articles on these subjects, and his work has appeared in a variety of publications, including The Washington Post and the Weekly Standard. He has also been a guest on the popular radio show “Prime Time America” on Moody Broadcasting Network.

- Anderson is a frequent lecturer on university campuses around the country, including the University of Michigan, Vanderbilt University, Princeton University, and the University of Virginia. He has also addressed several international conferences, including the International Congress on the Bible, the Ligonier Conference, and the American Scientific Affiliation.

- Anderson is a practicing Christian and has served in several leadership roles within the Church. He has served on the boards of Pine Cove Conference Center, Aim for Success, Just Say Yes, and Probe Ministries. He has also served as a faculty member at several universities, including Yale University, Oregon State University, and Temple Baptist Seminary.

- Anderson is a respected scholar and author in his field. He has contributed to a number of academic journals and has written several books on bioethics and philosophy. His work has been published in a variety of academic and popular publications, including The Washington Post, The Weekly Standard, and The Wall Street Journal.

- Anderson is a devout Christian and has written extensively on the intersection of faith and public policy. He believes that Christians have a responsibility to engage in the public square and to promote a Christian worldview in all areas of life, including science, medicine, and government.

- Anderson is a frequent guest on radio and television programs, including “Prime Time America” on Moody Broadcasting Network and “Fire Away” on American Family Radio. He has also written a number of articles for a variety of publications, including The Washington Post and The Weekly Standard.

- Anderson is a respected Christian philosopher and scholar, and his work has had a significant impact on the field of bioethics and philosophy.

- Anderson is a frequent lecturer on university campuses and has addressed several international conferences.

- Anderson is a respected scholar and author in his field, and his work has been published in a variety of academic and popular publications.

- Anderson is a devout Christian and has written extensively on the intersection of faith and public policy.